

Lewis, O'Neill Refuse To Send Soft Coal Fuss To Arbitrators

By HAROLD W. WARD
Washington, May 17 (AP)—The White House today reported there is "not a thing" new in the deadlocked soft coal contract negotiations.

President Truman, rebuffed on his proposal for arbitration of the dispute, turned his attention to the threatened nationwide rail strike which would halt movement of coal from mines.

Press Secretary Charles G. Ross told a news conference he didn't think there was any chance that Mr. Truman would call John L. Lewis and Charles O'Neill, spokesmen for coal operators, to the White House today. He added, however, that "anything could happen at any time."

Block Arbitration
The United Mine Workers and the operators rejected last night the Presidential proposal for arbitration of their differences.

It was Ross who replied "not anything," when asked by reporters whether there were new developments in the coal dispute.

Mr. Truman arranged to remain at the White House to handle any developments, cancelling a week-end trip to Missouri.

And despite the generally gloomy outlook, Secretary of Labor Schweitzer said he found grounds—"very intangible" though they might be—for believing the negotiations might be resumed.

These came to an abrupt halt over the barrier raised by Lewis' demand for a seven per cent payroll levy to finance a miners' health and welfare fund.

Mr. Truman's arbitration suggestion followed, but it came to naught.

Make Concession
Lewis turned it down cold. He told the President his negotiating committee (Please Turn to Page 7)

Truman Calls Rail Confab To Avert Strike On Saturday

By D. HAROLD OLIVER
Washington, May 17 (AP)—With a nation-wide railroad strike set for 4 p. m. (EST) tomorrow, President Truman asked both sides in the wage dispute to the White House today for a series of conferences starting at 2:30 p. m.

This will be one of his last, if not the final, effort at government intervention to prevent a rail tie-up by a walkout of 250,000 engineers and trainmen.

The President has said on two occasions that he will seize the carriers if a settlement is not reached before the strike deadline.

Reject Proposal
Wage negotiations stalled yesterday when the representatives of the managements rejected a modified proposal by the trainmen and engineer brotherhoods for a wage increase of 18 per cent or a minimum of $1.44 cents a day. They originally asked 25 per cent or a floor of $2.50 a day.

The carriers would not go beyond the 16 cents an hour or $1.28 a day recommended by the President's emergency board. The employers contend even this would cost $584,000,000 on the basis of estimated employment for 1946.

First on the President's list this afternoon are A. F. Whitney, president of the trainmen, and Alvan Ley Johnston, head of the engineers.

To Meet Others
Mr. Truman then will talk with C. J. Goff, representing the firemen; T. C. Cashen of the switchmen, and W. W. Fraser of the conductors.

These three operating unions were awarded a 16 cents an hour increase by an arbitration board in March, but they are now demanding an additional $1.20 a day.

In another meeting Mr. Truman will confer with John J. Peley, president of the Association of American Railroads, and D. P. Loomis, W. T. Farichy, H. A. Enoch and J. P. Parrish, representing the railroads conference committees.

HEAR COLUMBIA PLAN FOR YOUTH WORK THRU YEAR

How Columbia, Pa., developed a youth program for the entire year was outlined Thursday evening to the members of the Youth Center adult committee at a meeting in the Methodist church.

William H. Ridinger, a member of the executive committee for the youth activities at Columbia and one of the founders of the program there, showed charts, graphs, motion pictures and scrap books of the activities and outlined in detail how the program was started and how it is organized.

The meeting was held to acquaint members of the committee with the activities in nearby cities prior to making a concerted drive to secure a year-round program of recreation for Gettysburg's youths under the direction of one group.

Formed Civic Group
The committee also plans to visit several other nearby communities that have an over-all program to determine just how they secured their program and how it is being carried out.

Columbia, to meet the problem ago decided to set up a program of juvenile delinquency, three years ago decided to set up a program of recreation for its youngsters and through the cooperation of the schools, Mothers' club, and fraternal and service organization, a Columbia Civic association was set up to conduct the program, Ridinger said.

All funds for the recreational program there are raised by activities and donations, he added. With a budget of $3,500 for the year, the group raised $4,425. Largest income came from two block parties held at the beginning and the end of the 10-week playground season with $2,000 realized from the two parties. Memberships in the organization brought in $100; benefit movies, $225; donations received from a special letter sent to individuals, $1,000; civic organizations gave $900 and industries gave $500. The school board gave full use of its facilities, Ridinger added, stating that without the full cooperation of the Columbia school board the program could not be carried out.

From April to September the program includes such activities as baseball, softball, volleyball, badminton, archery, hikes and camps.

Opportunity For All
From November to April the program includes basketball, wrestling, boxing, ping pong, volleyball, and tumbling. Dances and such activities are given throughout the year (Please Turn to Page 5)

370 Truckers Tie-Up Delivery Of Three Philadelphia Papers

Philadelphia, May 17 (AP)—Approximately 370 striking AFL truck drivers have halted distribution of Philadelphia's three largest newspapers—some 1,500,000 daily—in a dispute involving full pay for lunch time.

The Philadelphia Record and Philadelphia Inquirer, morning papers, and the Evening Bulletin announced in a joint statement last night that publishing will continue but papers will be sold only "over the counter at their respective plants."

No papers are on newstands. None will be delivered to homes. None will be mailed to subscribers.

The strike was called by the Philadelphia Newspaper and Magazine Chauffeurs and Handlers local union, No. 628, affiliated with the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Warehousemen and Helpers of America (AFL). Pickets marched around entrances of newspaper plants.

Edward Crumback, international vice-president of the teamsters, asserted "this strike is unsanctioned by both the teamsters' joint council and the International Teamsters Union," adding "other teamsters have been instructed to go through the picket lines."

Sol Woocker, local 628 business agent, called the walkout a "rank and file strike."

"The basic issue," he declared, "is a demand for pay for a half-hour lunch period. That is now given to the mailers, stereotypers and other employees."

"The men will stay out until they win because the newspapers have used too much pressure trying to make them settle. Everybody but President Truman has been in on the conferences."

The evening tabloid Philadelphia Daily News, with a 130,000 daily sale, was not affected by the strike. A spokesman for that paper said the News agreed to pay the drivers for their half-hour lunch period during an eight-hour work day.

Richard W. Slocum, general manager of the Bulletin, in a city-wide broadcast said the three newspaper managements have been negotiating with the striking union for three months.

Unlucky Sailor Is Aided By Red Cross

Another sailor has been added to the list of servicemen who found friendship and help in Gettysburg. Monday night a sailor, who was due to report to Camp Peary, Williamsburg, Virginia, arrived in Gettysburg enroute from his home in Ohio. He had left Ohio with tickets and money to reach his destination. At Pittsburgh he either lost his wallet or someone "borrowed" it. He started hitchhiking and got a ride to Gettysburg. Carrying his duffel bag he was walking slowly along the street while trying to "hitch" a ride out of here. He stumbled, spraining his ankle.

Dr. Raymond F. Sheely treated the young man and then called the Red Cross, stating that the sailor was not fit to travel because of his ankle. The Red Cross office went to work. His camp was notified and his leave was extended. A lodging room was secured. Tuesday morning the Red Cross bought him breakfast and a ticket on the bus and he was on his way — back to camp.

JR. RED CROSS SENDS $500 TO NATIONAL FUND

The Adams County Junior Red Cross has sent $500 to the National Children's Fund of the American Red Cross. It was announced today by Mrs. Grace Codori, secretary.

Marking an increase over the 1945 contribution of $310, the amount goes toward a fund, maintained by voluntary contributions of boys and girls in schools of America, for the distribution of medical, health and educational supplies as well as gift boxes, shipments of clothing and ones of candies to children in war-torn countries.

A letter to Mrs. Codori from the national Red Cross said in part: Please tell your Junior Red Cross members how much we appreciate their gift and how much more it will be appreciated by the thousands of children who have been deprived of these necessities and small luxuries for so many years.

Lauded By Director

The work of the Junior Red Cross in Adams county was praised in another letter sent to Miss Ruth Scott, chairman of the county Junior Red Cross organization by Howard J. Bell, director of the American Junior Red Cross in the eastern area.

Bell pointed out that: "More than anything else, this world of ours needs an educational system that will encourage boys and girls to understand and respect each other as individuals. If this end can be achieved, there may be enough sympathy and good will to prevent another, and last, war."

"In the years ahead, it is our hope that the Junior Red Cross will be an increasingly dynamic and constructive force in the desperately important effort to cultivate international and intercultural understanding. By offering our enrolled schools opportunities to participate in purposeful service projects, we hope to give a deeper and richer meaning to the truth that, 'All children of this earth are brothers.'"

"The attainment of this goal will rest upon a number of things. We shall continue to need the unselfish devotion of our Chairmen. Committee members, teacher-sponsors, and other adult leaders. And we must preserve the strength of the junior membership in our chapters."

"That we have such leadership in the Adams County Chapter is effectively demonstrated by the fact that 100% of your schools have been enrolled in the Junior Red Cross for 1946. In view of the inevitable postwar letdown, this is an admirable and remarkable achievement. We want you to know how gratified we are."

"Brownout" Hits Town's White Way

Gettysburg suffered an involuntary "brownout" again Thursday when a transformer in one of the white way lights grounded and put out the entire circuit along Baltimore street, Chambersburg street, and York street.

The grounding apparently occurred early Thursday morning but was not noticed until Thursday night when the center of town found itself in unusual darkness. The difficulty was repaired by 10:30 o'clock.

Metropolitan Edison officials explained that the white way lights are connected in series "like Christmas tree lights and when one goes out, they all go out."

B-17 Crash Charged To Fuel Exhaustion

Fairfax, Calif., May 17 (AP)—The crash of an army B-17 which cost the lives of two airmen and injured seven others was unofficially charged to fuel exhaustion.

The four-engine bomber, with a normal fuel capacity for a non-stop, transcontinental flight, crashed on a 400-mile hop 10 miles short of its destination at Hamilton Field early yesterday. The plane came from Clovis, N. M., and took off from Mines Field, Los Angeles, on the last lap of its flight.

A Fourth Air Force public relations officer said the bomber ran out of gas before it plummeted into a hillside three miles west of here. By radio the plane had reported to the Oakland airport it was running low on gas, and Fairfax residents said they heard the engines sputter before the crash.

Rescuers who cut through the fuselage with torches to reach five men trapped for several hours in the wreckage said it was "just about a miracle" that the five injured men survived.

Several Killed In Cuban Army Camp

Havana, Cuba, May 17—Unofficial reports today said heavy shooting broke out early this morning at Camp Columbia, Cuban army headquarters near Havana, and that several persons were killed and wounded.

The newspaper information described the disorder as a "seditious uprising" of military contingents in the camp which was "dealt with immediately," but no other Cuban newspapers gave it such a seditious character.

Other reliable sources said the difficulty developed when several officers and men refused to obey orders transferring them to the military base of San Antonio de Los Baños. That base is to be handed over by the United States on May 20.

SAYS WIFE HAS FUNDS FOR SUIT

An answer to a show cause order was filed by Walter G. Shaffer, York street, at the Prothonotary's office today, contending that his wife, Mrs. Edna I. (Amspacher) Shaffer, Glen Rock, is not entitled to "alimony pendente lite" and counsel fees on the grounds that she appropriated to her own use several thousand dollars in a joint bank account and all of the United States government bonds which Shaffer purchased through his employment with the American Insulator company, New Freedom, Pa.

The answer, filed after Judge W. C. Sheely signed an order May 11 returnable May 20, directing Shaffer to show cause why he should not be made to pay alimony and counsel fees, contended that Mrs. Shaffer has adequate funds obtained from Mr. Shaffer out of which to pay for her defense in the divorce action brought by Shaffer on grounds of indignities to the person.

Mr. Shaffer also answered that he had failed to contribute to his wife's support since April 26, 1945, for the same reasons. In an answer to a petition for dismissal of the master named in the issues, Mr. Shaffer set forth that "no good and legal purpose" would be served by a jury trial, and that no "good and sufficient" reason existed for dismissal of the master, Atty. Edward Markley. A charge of desertion and non-support is pending in the courts in York county according to the papers.

Need Five Years To Make Coed School

Buck Hill Falls, Pa., May 17 (AP)—It will take five years and cost $1,500,000 to turn Muhlenberg college into a co-educational institution, a member of the Allentown (Pa.) school's board of trustees told the Lutheran Ministerium of Pennsylvania, southern New Jersey and Delaware.

George B. Balmer, an attorney from Reading, Pa., said the money is needed to construct additional buildings. The synd voted last year that Muhlenberg be changed to a co-educational school.

Balmer suggested that the college's endowment fund be increased by $292,500 to meet added maintenance costs.

Meantime, 750 delegates to the synod's 199th convention agreed last night on a three-point program: (1) to sponsor Boy Scout troops, (2) to stimulate Sunday school attendance, and (3) to support youth rallies in their congregations.

RESUME TALKS TO BALK STRIKE

New York, May 17 (AP)—Hard coal operators and negotiators for the AFL United Mine Workers today began their seventh day of wage contract discussions centering on the controversial union controlled health and welfare fund.

The conferees began their session at 9 a. m. (EST), declining comment before the meeting.

Union spokesmen presented the fund issue to life operators' seven man committee on Wednesday. Discussions since have been "exploratory," according to J. B. Warriner, president of the Lehigh Navigation Coal Co. and management spokesman.

Thomas J. Kennedy, secretary-treasurer of the UMW, told a news conference following yesterday's session that certain aspects of the proposed fund, including "life insurance costs and the tuberculosis rate," were discussed.

Kennedy and Warriner disagreed sharply as to the accuracy of assertions contained in the miners' proposal embodying the fund idea. Among other things, the statement declared there was a high accident and occupational disease rate in the hard coal fields.

Warriner asserted that the miners were "emphasizing the bad, and ignoring the good."

PARIS CONFAB IS ADJOURNED

Paris, May 17 (AP)—U. S. Secretary of State James F. Byrnes and a party of 15 other persons, including Senators Tom Connally (D-Tex.) and Arthur Vandenberg (R-Mich.), left Orly Field today for Washington after the deadlocked foreign ministers conference had adjourned until June 15.

They flew in the "Caravan Crescent," which took off at 11:12 a. m. (6:12 a. m. Eastern Daylight Time). Before departing, Byrnes expressed the conviction that, despite the failure of the current conference to draft any major treaties, the outstanding differences between Russia and the Western Powers would be settled at the next meeting. Similar views had been expressed by British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin.

American sources said that Byrnes' attitude was based on progress made on such questions as Italian reparations, colonies and Balkan frontiers.

World Government Could Rule Atom

Pittsburgh, May 17 (AP)—Dr. J. Robert Oppenheimer, University of California physicist who directed the Los Alamos laboratory where the atomic bomb was perfected, declared last night there now is no machinery for making effective a prohibition against the national development of atomic weapons.

Addressing the Westinghouse centennial symposium on the future of atomic energy, Doctor Oppenheimer said military and peacetime exploitations of the new force are inextricably tied together.

To bar military use by any nation would prevent that nation from making any other use of atomic power, the scientist asserted.

Doctor Oppenheimer expressed belief much could be done by a world government whose laws applied to citizens as do those of individual states—"an organization with safeguards against monopoly but one where controlling action could not be halted by a veto."

The baby, Dennis Michael, was fathered by a merchant seaman with whom Emmill's wife, Fern, admitted intimacy while her husband was overseas.

BROWNS BLANK SLIPPING SOX; CARDINALS WIN

By JOE REICHLER
(AP Sports Writer)

Next to the legality of the reserve clause in the players' contracts, baseball's most puzzling question today is what has happened to Boston's power-laden Red Sox?

Held to only three hits by Jack Kramer in last night's 3-0 defeat by the St. Louis Browns, the reeling Red Sox stumbled through their fifth consecutive contest in which they failed to produce more than four safeties. Not even Chicago's hitless wonders of 1906 were that anemic with the stick.

In the last five games, of which they've dropped three to reduce their first place American League lead to five games, the Red Sox have made a total of 15 hits in 147 times at bat for a puny team batting average of .102. Compared with their .297 compiled in their first 24 games, it is almost unbelievable.

Individually the players averages have shrunk alarmingly. Before the slump, six regulars were batting over .300, with Johnny Pesky and Ted Williams soaring above .400. Now only Williams, Pesky and Dom DiMaggio are .300 hitters.

Rain Stops Games
Only brilliant pitching by Mickey Harris and Dave Ferris has prevented the Sox from losing all five games.

In a parade of players including nine pitchers, the St. Louis Cardinals edged out the Boston Braves 9-8 in another ace-light contest to solidify their position at the head of the National League. With 33 players participating, 17 for the Braves, the Cards had to go 10 innings to gain the decision.

Rain washed out the rest of the major league schedule.

PARADISE OPENS FOR FISHERMEN

Belleville, Pa., May 17 (AP)—Thousands of anglers from all sections of the state converged on fisherman's paradise today for what State Fish Commissioner Charles A. French described as "the unique in fishing" in Pennsylvania.

For nine weeks, starting today and extending through July 20, fishermen may use only artificial flies with barbless hooks—lures like spinners and spoons are banned—in angling for the myriad brook, brown and rainbow trout which abound in Spring Creek.

The paradise, French said, is an experimental station for the fish commission which wanted to establish that specially stocked fish will remain in certain environs under favorable conditions.

Anglers are limited to two trout daily. Those taken from the men's stream must be at least 10 inches or more and from the ladies' stream, seven inches or more.

The gates open at 8 a. m. (EST) and close 8 p. m. every day except Sunday when fishing is not permitted. Attendants, stationed at the gates, hand out special badges which must be returned at the end of the day together with a report on the catch.

The project will remain open two weeks longer than previous years, French said, "to afford the returning servicemen ample opportunity to visit the site."

Russians Reported Out Of Manchuria

Nanking, May 17 (AP)—Chinese Vice Minister of Foreign Affairs Liu Chieh said Thursday he had been informed that all Russian troops had been withdrawn from Manchuria.

"I would think this included Dairen," Liu said.

Presumably Port Arthur would not be affected. It becomes a Soviet naval base under the Chinese-Russian treaty.

Liu reported that Moscow had yet to reply formally to the Chinese government regarding the withdrawal.

He said the information came from Gen. Tung Pen-Ping, head of the Chinese military mission in Vladivostok, who had received an "informal" official notification.

Cardinal Observes 25th Anniversary

Philadelphia, May 17 (AP)—Dennis Card, Dougherty Thursday celebrated the 25th anniversary of his elevation to the sacred college of cardinals.

He presided over a solemn pontifical mass of thanksgiving in the Cathedral of St. Peter and Paul. Bishop Hugh L. Lamb was the celebrant. Other events of the day were a procession in which more than 1,000 priests and brothers of the Philadelphia archdiocese were to participate and a dinner at the Bellevue-Stratford hotel.

Gov. Edward Martin and Mayor Bernard Samuel were among the guests.

Cardinal Dougherty was ordained to the priesthood May 31, 1890, consecrated a bishop in Rome June 14, 1903, and named archbishop of the Philadelphia archdiocese April 30, 1918.

Baseball Crowds Top Figures For Last Year

Chicago, May 17 (AP)—Attendance in the first month of play in the American League, unofficial figures disclosed today, was near 1,800,000, a gain of 1,000,000 over the turnout in the eight cities in a comparable period last season.

The New York Yankees, whose all time record for an American League team was set in 1929 with 1,289,000 was the pace-setter for the other clubs in the opening month. In 17 single games at the big Yankee stadium the attendance figures were listed as 324,508.

Detroit's first 10 home games attracted an average of more than 27,000, with a total attendance of 271,128. The last place Philadelphia Athletics, in their first 20 games at Shibe Park, topped the 200,000 mark in attendance with 208,246. Unofficial attendance in the other four league cities showed 170,211 in 14 games at Washington; 104,691 in 10 games at Cleveland; 86,911 in nine contests at Chicago, and 57,367 in eight tilts at St. Louis.

LEGALITY OF CONTRACTS UP

New York, May 17 (AP)—Legality of the player contract, the cornerstone of organized baseball, has been questioned in New York state supreme court by the Mexican league in a surprising counter-attack against what is termed an American "monopoly."

Charging that the American player contracts were "monopolistic, unconscionable, illegal and against public policy," Jerome Hess, counsel for President Jorge Pasquel and the Mexican league, yesterday insisted that players are held in "peonage for life."

As a result of this new approach by the Mexicans, Justice Julian Miller reserved decision on the New York Yankees' request for a permanent injunction, restraining the Pasquels and their agents from tampering with Yankee players.

The court also reserved decision on the Mexican charge but strongly indicated it thought the whole thing should come up for trial, probably May 27 when the Yankees said they would be ready. Hess said the date would suit his clients fine.

Hess had sought a separate trial on the monopolistic angle and Mark T. Hughes, representing the Yanks, battled for a permanent injunction irrespective of the monopoly charge.

"Monopoly is our defense and this case will be tried right down to the end until every scintilla of evidence has been introduced," Hess told the court. "Let there be no doubt about that."

Officials Frown On Mine Storage Plan

Harrisburg, Pa., May 17 (AP)—Pennsylvania officials don't think much of the army and navy munitions board's idea of storing machine tools and other strategic supplies in coal mines.

Richard Maize, state secretary of mines, and Dr. Ralph H. Stone, a state geologist, asserted there are too many disadvantages to the plan. Limestone mines, or the piercing of subterranean rooms into solid rock, would appear more practicable, they said.

A joint army-navy survey, it was announced recently in Washington, will consider such factors as floor space, ceiling, humidity, overhead cover, soil and rock conditions, access approaches, general interior conditions, concealment from aerial observation, and proximity to transportation, communication, utilities, and housing facilities.

Play Postponed Contests Tonight

Rain washed out games scheduled to be played Thursday evening in the Community Softball league.

Tonight the Eks meet the Varsity Barbers and the Moose face the American Legion on the college field at 6 and 7 o'clock, respectively. On the high school field the VFW meets Knox's Grocery at 6 o'clock. One of Thursday night's postponements may be played on the high school field at 7 o'clock inasmuch as the Marketers-Acme tilt will be played at a later date.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, May 17 (AP)—Richard Burton, British open golf champion who is coming here for a tussle with Byron Nelson, is a native of Darwin, Lancashire, a fact which has PGA Drumbeater Tom Sheehan a bit worried. . . . Tom picked up a Lancashireman in Italy during the war and says he still doesn't know what the guy was saying after a half hour of conversation. . . . But maybe Dick has lost some of his accent. He's been a golf internationalist for years and played here in the 1935 Ryder cup matches.

DELAYED DIALOGUE
Commenting on the National football league's announcement that it had 990 players signed for 1946, an all American conference Guy remarks: "That will leave only about 60 men when they get down to the player limit and they have three minor leagues they expect to stock with players." . . . The rebuttal from a National leaguer: "We don't try to stock any minors. We sign major leaguers and let the minors like the American league, Pacific coast and all America conference remain independent and sign their own men."

ONE-MINUTE SPORTS PAGE
Saturday's heptagonal—meaning seven-sided—track meet at Princeton, N. J., will have nine teams entered. . . . If Assault wins the Belmont he will become the seventh colt to win the "triple crown" and also will break Gallant Fox's record of $306,275 earnings in one season. Assault already has won $226,120, most of it in the Derby and Preakness, and the Belmont is another hundred grander. . . . Harry Hottel, the Paterson, N. J., youngster who has pitched two high school no-hit games this spring, may do his college pitching for William and Mary. His older brother was there before the war. . . . Boxing ought to come back to the garden with a bang tonight. The most frequent comment about both Bruce Woodcock and Tami Mauriello is "he can be hit."

Schneider Leads At Fort Worth
Fort Worth, Tex., May 17 (AP)—George Schneider of Ogden, Utah, comparatively an upstart in PGA tournament golf, boasted a competitive course record of 67, $250 for doing it and promise of a lot more as he led the way today into the second round of the $15,000 Colonial National Invitation tournament.

Only Schneider and Little Toney Penna, the wise-racking pro from Cincinnati, were able to better par, Penna's 69 giving him second place by two strokes over four players—Harry Todd, Dallas; Sam Snead, Hot Springs, Va.; Bob Hamilton, Chicago, and amateur Wilford Wehrle of Louisville. In the two-over-par 72 bracket was Byron Nelson of Toledo, O., tournament favorite who lost three strokes to water hazards, while Ben Hogan, of Hershey, Pa., another top-rated entry, scrambled for a 73.

GUARD DUTY MAY BE BAR TO DRAFT

Harrisburg, May 17 (AP)—The possibility arose today that Pennsylvanians may choose a "hitch" in a home-town National Guard unit as an alternative to induction for full-time duty in one of the armed services.

Congress, in amending the Selective Service law this week to ban the drafting of teen-agers and fathers, let stand other provisions of the pre-war law. One of these put in Class I-C the personnel of federal-recognized guard units, re-designating them as "men in service," along with specified services.

"It looks like we've gone clear around the circle and we're back where we started before Pearl Harbor," commented Lt. Col. Henry M. Gross, state Selective Service director, in reply to a reporter's inquiry.

At present, the Pennsylvania national guard is in transition between the inactivation of units that were called into federal service during World War II, and their reorganization on a new basis. Recruiting for 26,287 officers and men in "first priority" units, later to be boosted to approximately 40,000, starts next month.

Federal recognition, which puts the guard personnel in the draft-exempt category, may be granted when a company or comparable organization musters a set percentage of its total authorized strength.

Man Who Stabbed Woman Held Insane

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., May 17 (AP)—John Vaverka, 38, who admitted stabbing a woman to death in broad daylight on a downtown Wilkes-Barre street because "I figured maybe God ordered me to do this," was declared insane yesterday by a two-doctor commission.

Judge W. A. Valentine committed Vaverka to the Fairview hospital for the criminal insane at Waymart, Pa.

The victim of the stabbing was Miss Ruth Datner, 39, killed last May 1 as she was walking to her home.

The commission, composed of Doctors Fred Tongue and George T. Baskett, called the crime "an uncontrollable impulse to kill somebody."

Vaverka, in a statement to the doctors, said "I did not know that girl. It just happened. If it hadn't been her, it would have been some-

Art Student Held On Woman's Charge

Washington, May 17 (AP)—James Robert McCullen, 31-year-old art student from Uniontown, Pa., was detained without bail today on assault charges preferred by the young mother of three children.

Police said the woman, who is 25, declared McCullen held her prisoner for five hours early yesterday in a basement room at the Corcoran art gallery where both studied. He denied the accusation at his arraignment before a federal commissioner.

McCullen told police he was discharged from the army last September at Walter Reed hospital here, where he said he was treated for combat wounds.

About 500 Sons of Veterans, Sons of Veterans Reserves and friends of the veterans filled the church for the service.

Fifteen of the twenty-one Civil war veterans living in Adams county were present, and an impressive feature of the service was a ritualistic memorial service conducted for the four members, Colonel James K. REWARDS

None of us gives back enough to the source from which we take. In Boswell's Life of Johnson, the author quotes Dr. Johnson as follows: "Many years ago, when I used to read in the library of your college, (Trinity college, Cambridge) I promised to recompense the college for that permission by adding to their books a Baskerville Virgil. I have now sent it, and desire you to reposit it on the shelves in my name."

The rewards that I have gained from public and college libraries have been beyond my ability to repay, but of recent years I have tried to make up this indebtedness by presenting several college libraries with volumes that have inspired and blessed me for many years. My recommendation is that many more lovers of books do the same. They will be enriched as I have been.

I like to play games, both indoor and outdoor—but I don't like any reward beyond the pleasure of losing to a delightful companion, or winning in my own right, which is reward and glory enough.

Rewards, in the form of medals and gifts have never had any attraction for me. Too often they encourage boasting, whereas excellence, or triumph, in any form, is reward enough. There is always plenty of applause for the one who modestly takes his honors as full compensation for good and honest efforts that have put him on high ground. Nothing can compete with inward satisfaction.

Can you imagine the thrill and happiness that Charles Lamb gained from the appreciation that was returned to him for having sent to William Wordsworth a copy of his delightful Elia essays? What a thrill these days, just to handle a first edition of those essays, as I have done—but not able, as yet, to acquire a copy of my own. From my own modern copy, however, I read again and again, those beautiful essays. His Dream Children is a masterpiece.

Don't think when you give away anything that you get nothing in return. You get the satisfaction of having distributed something of yourself, and something of that other one is returned to you—to bless and enrich you.

Tomorrow Mr. Adams will talk on the subject: "One Day at a Time"

INDEPENDENCE NOW IS WITHIN INDIA'S GRASP

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(AP Foreign Affairs Analyst)

India at long last has independence within her grasp—and this time it is being handed to her on a silver platter.

That's the meaning of the British project of forming a federal union for self-government in India and passing it on to the Indians ready-made, so to speak. The Great Indian political parties having failed to settle their bitter differences in the recent round-table conference at Simla, Britain now is arbitrarily moving to set up a government and is inviting the Indians to come along and run it—to make what they will out of it, even to the extent of severing all relations with the mother country.

There are indications of strong opposition to the plan among Moslems, who desire a wholly independent state (Pakistan) for themselves. But Mahatma Gandhi, most powerful political figure in the country and guiding light of the All-India congress (mainly Hindu) has advised careful study of proposals, saying:

"Whether people like the announcement or not, it is going to be the most momentous one in this history of India."

That puts the thing in a nut-shell. Ever since my last visit to India in 1943 this column has been insisting that such a procedure seemed the most likely one to break the deadlock. As I repeated a couple of days ago, Indian leaders themselves admitted to me that just such "strong arm methods" were needed.

Of course, we still have to see whether the plan will work, but it's the best effort that's been made in the long history of the oftentimes bloody dispute.

Britain's new socialist Prime Minister Attlee and his government have moved with great courage and, one is bound to say, with vast daring. For India is among England's most cherished possessions, and it is from this mighty sub-continent that the British sovereign derives his rank of emperor. He is king of the other domains, but emperor of India.

The British Plan
There are imperialists who in their hearts—and perhaps publicly—will charge Attlee with having thrown away one of the most priceless of the crown jewels. Still, somebody had to make the move, for the Indian problem has been a menace to world peace.

The British plan on thumbnail is this: The federal union will comprise the provinces (called British India) and the some 600 Indian states which are ruled by princes and lesser potentates. There will be a central government which will control foreign affairs, defense and communications. All other matters will be dealt with by the governments of the principalities and the provinces.

There is, however, a vital deviation in the matter of the provincial governments. The provinces will be permitted to form regional groups which will have their own legislatures and executive branches. These group legislatures will be intermediate between those of the provinces at the bottom and the federal government at the top. Now the point of these group legislatures is this:

The Moslems have been demanding Pakistan on the grounds that they fear the Hindu, who outnumber them three to one. It was this insistence by the Moslems on an independent state outside any federal government that caused the collapse of the round-table conference, since the Hindus want a federal government. Under the provision for group legislatures, the Moslems can combine and so safeguard their interests, thus avoiding a division of India.

Today the Indian leaders have gone into a huddle to discuss the project. On their decisions depends the immediate future of 400,000,000 people—one fifth the population of the whole world. And it is a matter which affects the welfare of the entire globe.

Wealthy Negro Is Freed By Abductors

Chicago, May 17 (P)—Chief of Detectives Walter G. Storms said today that Edward P. Jones, wealthy negro and reportedly boss of the policy gambling in Chicago, had been released by abductors who kidnapped him last Saturday night.

Several hours after Storms' announcement, the detective chief and Jones appeared at Central police station. In the presence of Storms and Assistant State's Attorney Richard Austin, Jones told reporters, "I was taken."

He said he did not know any of the abductors or where he had been held for the last five days and said he "did not remember" if the kidnapers demanded ransom. Storms and Austin, as well as Jones, all said they did not know if any ransom had been paid.

Jones disclosed that during the time he was held by his abductors he was forced to lie on a bed under constant guard.

Domestication of cattle is said to have begun 10,000 years ago.

NEW PRESSURE FOR ENACTMENT OF DRAFT LAW

Washington, May 17 (AP)—Senate leaders applied fresh pressure today for speedy enactment of a new draft extension law, saying President Truman's age limit boost cannot meet army and navy needs.

Acting to "save what we can from the near-wreckage of the Selective Service system," the Chief Executive late yesterday ordered the induction of men through 29 years of age. Army estimates place 15,000 eligible men in that group, but the possibility arose that few would be drafted before the new July 1 expiration date.

Previously 25 was the top limit, but that was before the House forced the Senate to agree to exempt 18 and 19-year-olds in order to keep the entire draft act from dying last Tuesday.

Must Meet Issue
Senator Hill of Alabama, Democratic whip and member of the Military Committee which called for a full-year draft extension without exempting teen-agers, told a reporter:

"The country and the Congress must meet this issue head-on and now. There are not enough men in the 20-to-30 class to provide the number that the army and navy need. That means that fathers now in the service and men with long overseas service, some of it combat, must stay on duty until there are replacements."

Acknowledging that there has been much pressure from parents of the 18 and 19-year-olds, Hill added: "the public and some members have overlooked the pressure that will come from wives and parents of the long-service veterans if they cannot be released."

While Selective Service said it expects to send an official notification of the new age limit to local boards within a few days, one official estimated that the boards will not be ready to call up any of the eligibles for pre-induction physical examinations before June 1.

No One Injured As Cars Collide

No one was injured when cars operated by John A. Raffensperger, Arendtsville, and Paul C. Miller, Hanover, R. D., collided two miles north of Hanover on the Cross Keys road at 5 o'clock Thursday afternoon.

Damage totalled $150. According to state police who investigated, Miller attempted to turn left from a parked position. Raffensperger, coming toward him, attempted to stop when he saw Miller's vehicle moving. The Raffensperger car skidded on the wet highway into the Miller machine. The police are continuing the investigation.

LOVE THY NEIGHBOR

Lewistown, Mon., (AP)—Residents of a fashionable district objected vociferously when they saw some one had moved in an unpainted shack.

Plans to invoke zoning laws were abandoned when the shack's owner placed this sign in a window: "This house being remodeled for a GI Joe who spent five years in service and 2½ in the South Pacific."

Neighbors now are helping Joe with hammers and saws.

MILITARY BALLOTS

The county commissioners office said today that it had mailed out five military ballots, and had received four of them back. They will be received up to 10 a. m. May 24, the date of the official canvass.

at the "teen-canteen" conducted there all year around.

The "teen-canteen" is located in a large church basement. A swimming association rents a pool with the 50-cents-a-year membership fees paying for the rental. The girls' athletic activities during the winter months are carried on at the state armory and the boys get the use of the high school gymnasium. In summer time three playgrounds, located on three former vacant lots in the borough, are utilized.

So that all youngsters might have an opportunity to use the playgrounds, one section of the junior playground is fenced off for youngsters less than five years of age who are under the supervision of their parents. A total of six supervisors are used for the three playgrounds.

Report Shows Interest

In addition to the regularly used places, hikes, campfire programs and the like are scheduled during the year, with the youngsters tramping off to points of interest about the community.

The interest of the youths in the activities was demonstrated by the annual report which listed the child-hours spent on various programs. Softball totalled 3,261; swings, 1,888; baseball, 1,383; seesaws, 1,181; volleyball, 1,066; basketball, 850; badminton, 510; checkers, 138. Seven hundred and seventy-five youngsters took part in the swimming activities and 59 found pleasure in horseshoes. All told 22,771 persons took part in the various activities. Adding up the attendance at the various programs and the like the group found that 11,526 girls, 9,928 boys and 1,317 adults had been present.

At the playground special events are run every week, including such things as doll shows, field meets, and dog shows.

Los Angeles, (AP)—Calming news for morning after nerves.

An "Oxygen Cocktail" for hangovers, was demonstrated by delegates to a hospital convention before members of the Optimist club. It consists of inhaling for 20 minutes a mixture of nine parts oxygen and one part carbon dioxide through a special mask.

Several club members who confessed they weren't exactly in top shape themselves tried it out and said they felt considerably more optimistic after the treatment.

any local source. The Commission feels that this does not indicate, necessarily, a lack of need for new schools, public buildings, recreation projects, road construction, sewers, bridges and other needed public improvements in your county, nor that it is the desire of your political subdivisions that the allocated sum should be turned back to the General Treasury as unutilized. Rather the commission feels that your county has failed to take advantage of the appropriation because its authorities are not acquainted with the Act and the opportunities offered thereunder."

For Gettysburg the borough council might give some thought to the use of this allocation for a mosquito elimination program, a public comfort station, a public park (if borough property is available) or any other project that would contribute to the comfort, convenience and benefit of the entire community. Boroughs and school districts in the county may also consider use of this fund for projects within their areas.

Grants totaling more than a half a million dollars have been approved by the Commission thus far in the state.

PARODI TAKES PRESIDENCY OF U.N. COUNCIL

New York, May 17 (AP)—Alexander Parodi, French delegate, told the United Nations Security Council today on assuming the council presidency that "our task is to maintain and develop the spirit of co-operation."

The first council chairman to conduct the meetings in French, Parodi said:

"I think I may express the anguish of all peoples of the world today in the face of the difficult situation and express the hope they have in us. The task of our organization can only be a difficult one. The council then turned again to a discussion of rules on admitting members.

Paul Hasluck, the Australian delegate, blocked consideration of the proposals yesterday, arguing that the organization of the United Nations is not a social club and that the Security Council is not an executive committee.

Hasluck argued at length against two rules proposed by the council's committee of experts on procedure and, in effect, against a resolution offered by U. S. Delegate Edward R. Stettinius, Jr., which would channel membership applications from the secretary-general to the council, to a council committee, back to the council and then to the general assembly.

Both Stettinius' proposal and Hasluck's plan to have membership

NEGRO SOLDIER HELD IN DEATHS

Frankfurt, May 17 (AP)—The U. S. Army provost marshal announced today that an American Negro soldier had confessed the fatal shooting of two American enlisted men in Nuernberg last Friday night.

The name of the prisoner and his motive were not immediately disclosed.

Authorities said the Negro confessed after ballistics tests showed the fatal shots were fired from an army carbine which had been traced to him.

Four other Negroes had been detained for questioning last Tuesday when tests by Capt. Claude Nichols of Wichita, Kan., showed that the death weapon had been issued to their outfit.

The victims were T/4 Paul R. Skelton of McKinney, Texas, and S. Sgt. William R. Timmons, of West Haven, Conn., both 21 years old and assigned to the fiscal department of "Stars and Stripes." They were slain from ambush while riding in a jeep with another soldier and three young Allied women, on the way home from a night club.

Authorities said both men were killed by the same bullet, which went entirely through the body of one and penetrated six inches into the body of the other. Three shots

They were fired, the agents said, and the empty shells were found behind a clump of bushes near the scene, in a bomb-shattered residential section of Nuernberg.

URGE REGULAR AIR SERVICE IN THIS AREA

New York, May 17 (AP)—Establishment of regular airline schedules to 23 cities in New Jersey, New York, Maryland and Delaware with optional service to 553 smaller communities was urged in a brief filed Wednesday by the Port of New York Authority with the Civil Aeronautics Board.

Designation of Trenton, N. J., Wilmington, Del., and Allentown and Johnstown, Pa., as intermediate stops on direct trunkline air routes to the New York city area was also supported in the brief, a sequel to the Port Authority's appearance at a CAB hearing in Philadelphia last January in connection with proposed increased air service between New York city and the Middle Atlantic area.

The optional, "on call" service for the 53 smaller cities under 10,000 population, as recommended, would be at the discretion of the airline except at the request of three or more passengers and then a flight would be mandatory.

Would Cross Here

The authority's recommendations included:

Air service on a scheduled basis between New York and Dunkirk, N. Y., with stops at Williamsport, and Oil City, Pa.; and Elmira, Hornell, Olean and Jamestown, N. Y., and optional service to Dover, N. J., among other points.

Air service on a scheduled basis between New York and Cumberland, Md., with stops at Plainfield and New Brunswick, New Jersey; Norristown, Chester, York and Chambersburg, Pa., and Frederick and Hagerstown, Md., and optional service to North Plainfield, N. J., among other points.

"On-call" service from New York to South River, Red Bank, Long Branch, Asbury Park, Neptune, Bridgeton and Millville, N. J., and Annapolis, Cambridge and Salisbury, Md.

BIG TURNOVER IN PA. LEGISLATURE

Harrisburg, May 16 (AP)—Pennsylvania's voters will find the names of eight state senators and 26 members of the 1945 state house missing from the Republican and Democratic primary ballots when they cast their votes next Tuesday.

Another six members of the present legislature are seeking nomination to new posts, five of them in the state senate and the sixth, Thomas A. Owens (D-Cambria), to Congress.

Retirement accounted for most of the prospective changes in the state senate, including the decisions of State Sens. George Woodward (R-Phila.), a member since 1919, A. Evans Kephart (R-Phila.) and Charles H. Ealy (R-Somerset) not to seek new terms.

On the house side, Republicans Benjamin F. James of Delaware, Jack J. McDowell of McKean, and W. Sharp Fullerton of Lawrence and Democrats Reuben E. Cohen and J. Harold Levy, both of Philadelphia, are quitting lawmaking.

James led the fight in 1943 for establishment of the experience rating system of the unemployment compensation fund but bucked the GOP majority last year in spearheading the fight against the Philadelphia wage tax law.

Gets Life Term For Slaying In Tokyo

Tokyo, May 17 (AP)—Pvt. John S. Marchak, 26, of Baltimore, Md., was convicted by a Fifth Air Force court martial Thurs. of the murder of Pvt. John E. Conzer, Republic, Pa., after a drinking party the night of April 18.

Marchak was sentenced to life imprisonment. He had been a member of the service command unit at Tachikawa airbase near here. Col. Dwight B. Schannep was president of the court. Marchak pleaded innocent of murder but guilty of manslaughter.

Testimony and Marchak's statement gave the following account of the killing: After drinking beer and liquor, Marchak went to the guardhouse, armed a detail and led it to the airbase factory area to hunt Japanese prowlers. Later regular guards and the officer of the day, Lt. Frederick K. Ake, heard shooting. Ake led a party, which included Conzer, to investigate. They found Marchak in a building and surrounded it. As Conzer dashed toward the protection of a concrete wall he was killed by a single shot.

Marchak gave himself up and confessed firing the shot. In a sworn statement he said he believed Conzer was a Japanese prowler.

needed two clarinet, two tuba and two saxophone players. This band is used solely as a recruiting band and assignments to it are considered "choice assignment."

For initial assignment to the promotional branch, personnel procurement division, at Headquarters Third Service Command in Baltimore are needed one radio announcer and actor, a radio script writer and producer, and a commercial artist. The artist should be able to letter and understand layout work.

While previous army service would be of advantage to men interested in an enlistment for these assignments, it is not essential. Auditions will be arranged for musicians prior to enlistment, Sgt. Lutz said.

Men interested and capable of filling these positions should contact their nearest recruiting station, which is now open evenings until 8:00 p. m.

Letter to the Editor

Dear Sir:
I am probably another G.I. Joe to you, but regardless of what you think, I wish to tell you what I think.
I am an eighteen year old boy who was not quite lucky enough to escape the draft, I am a kind of fellow who is not accustomed to being away from home. So this is the ample time to tell you my mail has some how been fouled up but I have been getting The Times and to tell the truth it has kept me from becoming homesick and going A.W.O.L. This letter is the only means of showing my appreciation. Sincerely yours,

Congregation Of The Redeemer's Church Of Littlestown Was Organized In 1860; First Edifice Built In 1868; Leave Christ Church

—by P. EMORY WEAVER

The laying of the cornerstone of the first Redeemer's Reformed church in Littlestown took place in 1868, but the organization of the congregation occurred at least eight years prior to that event. At a special meeting of Zion Reformed Classis on August 13, 1859, in the German Reformed church at Gettysburg, a request was made to organize a new German Reformed church at Littlestown. A committee was appointed and reported at the next regular meeting of the Classis on May 11, 1860, that they had installed the Rev. Jacob Sechler in the Littlestown Charge, consisting of Christ church and St. Luke's and St. James' churches, and that they also organized a congregation in the borough of Littlestown. However, no date is given as to when this organization was effected.

The new congregation consisted of some forty members, drawn principally from old Christ church. On August 27, 1859, a petition was signed by 41 members of Christ church, stating that "As it is contemplated to form and organize a new German Reformed congregation in Littlestown, we the undersigned being members of Christ church congregation feel desirous to connect ourselves with the aforesaid new organization and do hereby respectfully solicit the proper authority of Christ church congregation to grant us an honorable dismissal, so that we may carry out said intention."

Elections In 1860

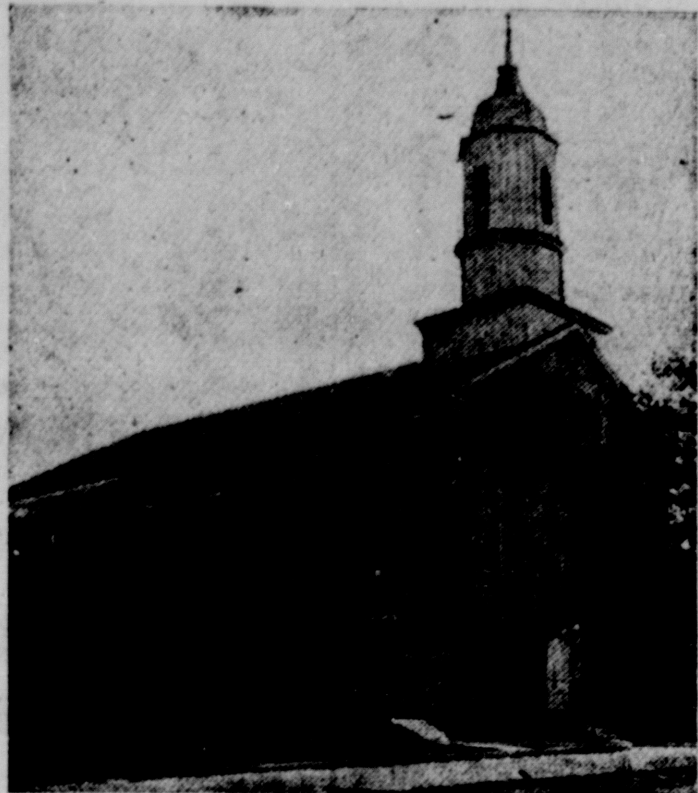

There is in existence a record of an "Election held for Church officers for the Littlestown German Reformed Congregation held this 6th day of January A.D. 1860 at the house of Geo. Will in Littlestown." The result of the election was as follows: Elders, Geo. Will and Isaac Snyder; Wardens, Geo. Sheely, Samuel Kump, W. King, and John Sellers; Treasurer, Joseph Zuck; Trustees, David Schwartz, W. Bang, and Jacob Woolf. There also exists a record of the "First Communion held in Littlestown German Reformed church, called The Redeemer's church, held on Sunday afternoon, June the 10th, A.D. 1860."

The first recorded baptism is that of Ellen Kate Sellers, August 7, 1859. There is no evidence that German services were ever held in "The Redeemer's Church."

The first services appear to have been held in the old Littlestown Academy building on the site of the present church. In 1868 plans were made for the erection of a suitable edifice and the cornerstone was laid August 16, 1868. The building was not completed, however, and formally consecrated, until May 26, 1872. The building was dedicated by W. K. Zieher. The cost of the first church building is not known. According to the records, the congregation made little progress prior to 1873. The first minister, Rev. Jacob Sechler, died May 10, 1880, in his seventy-fifth year. He had been succeeded in 1867 by Rev. John M. Clemens. He and his successor, Rev. Casper Scheel, had short pastorates. On October 1, 1873, when the Rev. J. John Ault was installed as pastor of this charge, known as Christ Church Charge, the Littlestown congregation numbered only 29 communicant members. Under his guidance, however, the church prospered, so that by 1874 the building was too small, and a 19-foot extension was added, at a cost, including various other improvements, of $2,000. This faithful pastor died of typhoid fever on July 26, 1880.

Separate Charge

At a special meeting of Classis on February 8, 1881, the following paper was read and adopted: "Resolved, That we, the Consistory of the Littlestown Congregation of the Christ Church Charge, this 4th day of December, 1880, hereby respectfully request Zion Classis to separate the Littlestown Congregation from the Christ Church Charge, and constitute it a separate Charge to be known as the 'Littlestown Charge'." The Rev. David N. Dittmar was elected the first pastor and installed April 9, 1881. He served until the early months of 1891, and during his pastorate built the Reformed Manse.

The first purchase of land by the church seems to have been the parsonage lot; the deed is dated April 1, 1882. The lot was purchased from the heirs of John Colestock. The lot on which the Church is built was

Dr. Albert O. Bartholomew came to October 22, 1933, it was finally resolved to erect a new church, and in 1935 the following building committee was appointed: Messrs. W. R. Jones, George Kump, I. D. Crouse, Dr. H. A. Stonesifer, Harry Parr, Samuel M. Keagy, George Conover, W. D. Nau, and Theron W. Spangler. (Lloyd Crouse later succeeded George Kump, deceased.)

Under the supervision of Charles E. Hofe, contractor, the present church school building was completed, and dedicated on January 25, 1937, free of debt. Work on the church itself was begun late in the spring of 1937, shortly before Dr. Bartholomew's sudden death shocked the entire community. The cornerstone of the new church was laid on July 25, 1937, with the Rev. Earl G. Kline and the Rev. A. P. Prantz officiating. The edifice was completed early in the pastorate of Rev. Dr. Theodore J. Schneider (1937-1941.) The first service was held in the new church on Sunday, April 3, 1938, and the formal dedication took place on April 24, 1938, with the Rev. Earl G. Kline preaching the dedicatory sermon and the Rev. A. P. Prantz delivering an address. The total cost of the church was about $45,000. The building is of red brick in a modified English Gothic. The architect was B. F. Starr, Harrisburg, a native of Littlestown. The present beautiful edifice, designed to provide for the best expression of corporate worship, is a heritage for which the members of Redeemer's can be thankful and of which they can be proud.

1943 Celebration

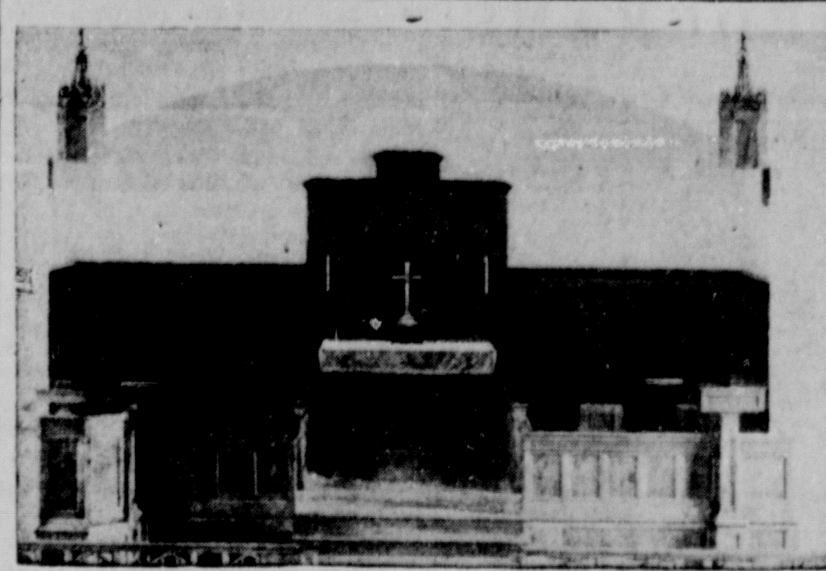

A special celebration for the seventy-fifth anniversary of the first Redeemer's church building was held April 7-11, 1943. The committee in charge consisted of Samuel H. Higinbotham, general chairman; Program: Elder Harry L. Cratin, President Mary Jane Staley of the Youth Fellowship, and Rev. T. W. Boltz; Hostesses: Mrs. Lloyd E. Crouse, president of the Women's Guild; Mrs. Ralph Staley, chairman of the Altar Guild; and Mrs. Charles Hofe, president of the Ladies' Aid Society; Special Music: Elder George Conover, Deacon J. Everett Peeser, and Samuel Higinbotham; Finance: Supt. Robert Myers of the Church School; Deacon Richard Eby; and Debt Reduction Fund Treasurer Theron Spangler.

Speakers included Rev. Allan S. Meck, D.D., president of the Mercersburg Synod; Rev. Henry I. Stahr, D.D., LL.D., President of Hood College, Frederick, Md. Ministers of the town and vicinity participated in a special community service on April 9, 1943.

Eighty-fifth anniversary services were held October 17-21, 1945. Speakers included Rabbi Leonard J. Rothstein, Temple Beth Israel, York; Rev. R. M. Everette, pastor, St. Paul's African Methodist Episcopal Zion church, Gettysburg; and Theodore A. Distler, LL.D., president of Franklin and Marshall College, Lancaster.

REMINISCENCES

70 Years in Gettysburg

By DR. HENRY STEWART

We had two establishments—Bartel's, on Washington street, between Chambersburg street and the railroad, and Hennig's on West High street, present site of the Sisterhood house. Neither was large, and I think the greater part of the output was sold on the premises. I remember nothing at all about them, except the names—and a bit of doggerel paraphrase, credited to the "rake-hellies" of the day:

"Oh! You must be a lover of old Hennig,
Or you can't get your lager when you're dry."

Blacksmithing

In 1880 there were eight shops in the town. That which survived longest was that of James Caldwell, corner of Chambersburg and Franklin streets, later on the rear of the same lot.

Culp's shop, later run by J. B. Hollabaugh (Bucky), a nephew, on East Middle street, about the middle of the first square, north side, was for many years an old landmark. I do not remember the others. The forges were great brick affairs, large enough to take in the largest wagon tires—tapering to a single chimney overhead. Each had two tuyers, each with its great leather bellows, supported by the division in the middle, the bottom half worked by a lever, forcing air into the upper half, which was weighted to give a continuous flow of air.

The disappearance of this industry is only partially understandable, in view of the census bureau, that there are more horses than ever in the county. It certainly does not seem to hold in this region, in the urban communities, at least.

Cabinet Making

There were several shops engaged in making furniture, and they did some very creditable work. I have a black walnut desk and bookcase—we then called them "secretaries"—made to my specifications, in the Garlach shop, down in "Sleepy Hollow" (the northern one of that little row of four brick houses), at William Ogden's father.

Two of them constituted the undertaking business of the town—a natural combination because the vast majority of interments were made in "coffins" made to measurements as required. Only a very few of the factory made "caskets" were used, by the ultra well to do. Jeremiah Culp operated at the lower end of the second square of York street, south side, followed by his son, Reuben, and J. W. Garlach, Baltimore street, below Breckenridge, later on Chambersburg street, near Washington. I think his father had preceded him in the business above described. He lived in the southern one of that row of houses.

Boy, 16, Faces Life Term For Murder

Pittsburgh, May 17 (AP)—A 16-year-old boy today stood convicted of first degree murder, with a recommendation of life imprisonment. After five hours' deliberation, a jury found Herbert Luster guilty of fatally shooting Angrenan Tsikaikis, 52, in a restaurant holdup last December 23.

Testimony indicated the boy was wearing his brother's army uniform and used a souvenir gun his brother had brought from Europe.

Sentencing was deferred, pending application for a new trial.

NEW RATION CUT FOR GERMANS IN AMERICAN ZONE

By DANIEL DE LUCE

Stuttgart, Germany, May 17 (AP)—Eighteen million Germans in the American occupation zone were officially notified Thursday that their "hunger" food ration would be cut more than seven per cent to 1,180 calories daily May 27.

The German Council of Ministers, exercising its newly granted authority to make independent decisions, announced a 95-calorie reduction from the previous average scale of 1,275 calories in three stages.

British military food administrators warned at Herford that 9,000,000 persons in the British occupation zone might be placed on starvation rations of 500 calories or less unless there were substantial grain imports in the next few weeks.

Appeal To Farmers

(However, the British government announced in London today that it would send 70,000 tons of barley and 80,000 tons of potatoes to the British zone in the next five weeks in an effort to reduce the threat of starvation. This would provide an average of 17 1/2 pounds of grain and 20 pounds of potatoes for the 9,000,000.)

The ration slash in the U. S. zone was made entirely from the bread allowance, which was cut one-third. The Germans will receive 2.2 pounds of bread weekly instead of 3.3 pounds.

The new ration food commissioner, Dr. Hermann Robert Dietrich, said the decision was harsh, but commented:

"This is the greatest crisis in rationing we have faced since the war ended a year ago. The critical period will continue at least until the next harvest, September 30."

He appealed to all farmers "to come to the aid of the hungry city people."

New Oxford

These students of the local high school have attained a record of perfect attendance for the past month: Seniors—Patricia A. Alwine, Janet L. Dutta, Jean Little, Geraldine Myers, Nadine Myers, Anna M. Noel and Eileen Stump; Juniors—Dorothy Hoover, Janet Kohn, Betty V. Sheely, Alice Jane Stock, Ivan R. Mechtly, Jr., Fred Myers, Robert Hoffacker, John Wolford and Donald Yealy; sophomores—Mary Adams, Loretta Baker, Betty Gabie, Nancy Harner, Janet Kline, Edith Kinneman, Gloria Potter, Lois Sheely, Evan Butler, Charles Harman, William Hoffacker, Dean Hull, Eugene Mechtly and Melvin Sponteller, and freshmen—Dorothy Brame, Florence Clark, Mary Ann Cook, Gloria Ecker, Bessie I. Griffin, Jean Miller, Martha Stock, Helen Stough, June Marie Wolf, Dale Reichert, Dale Auchey, Herbert Sponteller and Gene Yealy.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Alwine and family, near town, have been entertaining their daughter Lt. Virginia Alwine, ANC, on leave from the Beaumont hospital, Texas.

William Krebs, near here recently purchased the Samuel Diehl property, consisting of apartment and store room, at Abbottstown.

There were 296 West Point graduates serving in the Confederate army in the Civil War.

Blaze Damages Newspaper Plant

Erie, Pa., May 17 (AP)—Fire caused extensive damage early on Thursday to the Erie Dispatch-Herald building, forcing the newspaper to arrange for temporary publication of a four-page edition in a commercial print shop.

Eighty-five per cent of the city's fire-fighting apparatus fought the fire, discovered at 5:50 a. m. in the stereotyping department by George Gordon, night janitor. Gordon said he was working in the composing room when he heard what he thought was a muffled explosion. He found the stereotyping department a mass of flames.

No estimate of the damage was made but Dispatch-Herald executives said the principal loss, aside from damage to stereotyping equipment, was 18,000 Sunday comic supplements in the paper's mailing room.

Airways Traffic Jam Fear Expressed

Washington, May 17 (AP)—Rep. Frank L. Sundstrom, of East Orange (R-N. J.) says he is afraid of airplane traffic jams over the New York metropolitan area.

Accordingly, he advocates the creation of a permanent regional airport authority for the area, to include representatives of New York, New Jersey, the federal government's Civil Aeronautics Board (CAB) and possibly Pennsylvania and Connecticut.

SENATE HEARS NEW LABOR PLAN

Washington, May 17 (AP)—Senate opponents of labor control legislation talked today of proposing that every industry engaged in interstate commerce be required to inaugurate workers' health plans.

"We are considering such an amendment as well as several others which will be disclosed in due course," Senator Pepper (D-Fla.) told reporters.

Pepper is leading the floor fight against proposals which he contends would "undermine and destroy" labor. He puts in that category virtually all the score of proposed amendments to the labor committee's bill providing chiefly for a strengthened federal mediation service.

The Senate's week-long preoccupation with labor matters developed a new facet, meanwhile, with a bipartisan move to deny government workers the right to belong to a union that permits strike action.

Such a provision was attached by the Senate appropriations committee to a bill carrying funds for the Agriculture department. Senators Russell (D-Ga.) and Wherry (Neb.), the Republican whip, told reporters a similar clause will be inserted in all future supply bills.

letter he wrote to Gov. Walter E. Edge of New Jersey advocating the authority and also urging construction of a "safety airport" in central or south New Jersey.

Chapter 9

The idea came to Whitney while she was dressing for dinner that evening. It had been a bewildering, an unpredictable day. The Count's quick resourcefulness in saving her from what might have been a tragic accident on the hunting field; his low voice as he held her in his arms a few minutes later, came back to her.

"Make no mistake. I, Gregory Barberini, am the man you are to marry."

Then came Paul's innuendoes about him and her own instinctive resentment which made wearing Paul's ring impossible—at least for the present. It was all very puzzling. As she slipped into her long white dinner gown shimmering with flashing sequins, Whitney knew she was not as sure of herself as she would have expected she would be under the circumstances.

"Growing up, making your own decisions, certainly isn't simple," she thought uneasily as she sat at her dressing table putting the finishing touches to her tawny upswep hair. "I guess I'm in love with two men and I honestly don't know what I'm going to do about it."

As she picked up the orchids the Count had sent her and pinned them to her gown, Whitney had a sudden inspiration. She would ask Senator Field if he still wanted her as the second secretary in his office. She would live in Washington in her small apartment and come down to Random Folly for weekends. In that way she would be able to see Paul and the Count over a period of time which would give her an opportunity to decide which man she wanted to marry.

"I can't hurt Paul—he's been through a lot more than he will ever tell me, but he hasn't the right to say those things about Gregory. I'll show him how fine Gregory is."

She turned quickly as she saw Polly reflected in her dressing table mirror. For a moment Whitney regarded her older sister with frank admiration. In her black low-cut gown, unrelieved by any touch of color except the pearl necklace Spuds had given her when they were married, her hair gathered in a large shining knot low on her neck, Polly looked almost as young as her sister.

"That's a stunning dress, Polly. I—I was just coming over to your room."

"I'm glad you like the dress, dear. It's a simple little number from Falkenberg. I couldn't wait any longer to see you. I heard about your runaway this morning. Then I missed you in the crowd after the breakfast was over. Are you all right—no bruises—no hurt anywhere?"

"Nothing—not even a shakeup," Whitney's voice was eagerly reassuring. "Gregory was wonderful. When that stirrup strap broke he was right beside me as I started to fall. He swung me right off the horse onto his own saddle. It was like the movies!"

"I want to see your ring, dear. I know Paul brought it just a little while ago. It must be beautiful. He told me all about it."

"I didn't take his ring, Polly." Polly's expression was a mixture of amazement and sudden and acute distress. "What has happened? You and Paul have been engaged for nearly four years."

"I know. I'm still engaged to him—that is, I haven't said I wouldn't marry him," Whitney continued hastily as she saw the look on her sister's face. "It's just that I can't wear his ring until I decide what I am going to do. He said things about Gregory I didn't like and then when I wanted him to explain he wouldn't. So I told him I would have to take time to decide what I really wanted to do about getting married—and when."

"You mean you want time to see if you want to marry the Count," Polly replied grimly. "You're in love with him, Whitney, and that's a wretched homecoming for poor Paul. You better stop this nonsense or the first thing you know you'll not be engaged to anyone."

"No, Polly, please. You don't understand. You and Paul and Spuds just take it for granted that I'm still 'little sister' and that I'm going to do all the things you expect me to do, like a girl scout. Well, I'm not doing it that way! I've grown up. This is the most important decision I have ever made and I'm not going to be rushed off my feet while I'm making it."

"But Paul has a right to expect—" Polly started to protest but Whitney cut her short.

"Yes. I know he has. But we have both changed in the last four years and I want to be very sure, that's all."

"I suppose that is so," Polly agreed reluctantly. "My trouble is I can't see you married to anyone but Paul."

Whitney laughed as she took her sister's arm and started walking slowly toward the door with her. "Good old Polly—just has everything fixed for me. Tagged, insured and ready for immediate delivery. But don't you worry about me! I'll get along all right."

"I'm not so sure of that, Whitney," Polly's voice was sombre. "I think you are going to make a lot of trouble for yourself."

"Oh, but I have it all worked out. I know exactly what I'm going to do."

"Yes?" Polly turned abruptly and faced her sister. Whitney saw the anxious frown between her eyes and knew the family veto power was ready to descend upon her with full force.

"I'm going right down this minute and ask Senator Field if he will give me the job in his office he offered me three months ago—sub-secretary, social aide to Mrs. Field and general gladhander for his senatorial constituency. That will give me a little time out between halves to see what I'm really going to do."

"But that means you won't be here while Paul has his terminal leave. And I don't want you living in Washington alone. I—" Polly was floundering helplessly.

"Don't worry, darling. Everything's under control."

"But I'm afraid it isn't," Polly murmured under her breath as she went back to her own room.

Three Kinds Of Peach Borers

The term peach borer is often confusing when not accompanied by a description of the particular insect's ravages, for there are three kinds likely to attack peach trees in the eastern half of the United States. Of course, most growers, when they mention "borers" in relation to peach trees, refer to the large whitish grub which infests the bark at the trunk base and sometimes injures the larger roots. However, there is the insect known as Lesser Peach Borer and the minor pest usually called Shot-Hole Borer. The editor will appreciate the cooperation of readers who write him for information about any of these enemies if sufficient description is included to designate the specific insect.

The large borer which inhabits the trunk base is the larva of a clear-winged moth which appears in July and August to deposit its eggs on the trunk bark, weeds and perhaps on the soil surface near peach trees. The eggs hatch into tiny grubs which enter the bark and begin feeding at or slightly below the ground level. This insect does not attack any parts of the tree above the soil level.

Late September combat of the large borer is recommended for this region because most of the eggs are hatched at that time and the larvae are exposed to chemical gases recommended for their extermination. Hand worming, removal by cutting the culprits out of their bark burrows, is also advised for early autumn for the same reason.

The Lesser borer is somewhat similar to the large borer in habits although it confines its attacks almost exclusively to the upper trunk and main limbs, usually in wounds caused by careless pruning, cultivation injuries or abrasions or splits resulting from wind or low temperatures. Loose bark of old trees is a favorite habitation.

Of course, protection of trees to avoid wounds and prompt treatment of bark abrasions and crotch injuries will reduce the likelihood of the Lesser borer attacking trees. But growers who are troubled by this pest working in their trees should write the editor for needed control advice.

Shot-hole borers are so named from the characteristic shot-like holes they make in the bark of limbs, either as a place of entrance or a route of exit. Exuding gum is a common evidence of this pest's presence. Attacks are generally confined to trees weakened by one or both of the larger borers, by drought, disease or lack of proper nourishment.

First, therefore, in efforts to frustrate and control the shot-hole borer is to keep peach trees vigorous by proper pruning, spraying to control leaf-eating insects, and fertilization according to the tree's needs. Coating the trunk and main branches with a heavy application of whitewash will prevent adult beetles depositing new batches of eggs. Of course, it will accomplish little in controlling beetles already in the tree.

Peach tree owners are invited to write the editor about their borer problems. In the meantime give backward and infested trees a feeding of nitrogenous fertilizer not later than next week to stimulate growth and thereby overcome the weakening effects of ravages to date.

Ticks Cause Spotted Fever

The season is here when wood (dog) ticks begin spreading Rocky Mountain spotted fever. This means that persons likely to come into contact with these insects should know how to practice strict precautions to minimize the danger.

How is Rocky Mountain spotted fever transmitted? What are the symptoms? I state disease usually fatal? What should a person do to avoid the infection? What is the first step after a victim shows symptoms? These are questions every person should be able to answer now that the tick season is with us.

Wood ticks, the same species which infests dogs and a few other warm blooded animals, including rats and mice, carry the virus of spotted fever. Of course, not more than one tick out of 100 is likely to be infected, but human beings have no way of knowing this one from the other 99. Safety lies in keeping suspicion fastened on all ticks.

Health officials are warning the public not to be misled by the word "wood." Ticks may be found in weeds, grass and even in the home grounds. Or they may be carried from infested areas by dogs. Because children frequent tick-infested areas, they are more likely to pick up the virus-carrying insects. However, fatalities from spotted fever occur more among adults than among children.

A tick must remain attached to the human skin for several hours in most cases to transmit the virus. Thus, if all persons who visit areas where ticks may lurk will inspect their clothing and bodies immediately afterward to remove ticks, the danger will be greatly reduced.

Early symptoms of spotted fever are chills, backache and headache, with fever following. Rash accompanying the first stages is easily confused with similar symptoms in measles.

The disease may prove fatal in at least one case out of five unless the victim receives early treatment by a capable physician. But where the standard serum treatment is administered the death rate is negligible.

One of the most important precautions in avoiding spotted fever is to prevent ticks from attaching themselves to human bodies. And in case a tick is found feeding on the skin, usually on the neck or in the hair, the insect should be removed at once with tweezers or forced to let go by applying a drop of ether. "Inspect children twice a day" is the urgent advice of health authorities. Of course, all persons exposed to tick dangers by frequent or prolonged contact with the insects may obtain a preventive vaccine, subject to the advice of a physician.

Ticks commonly gain access to the body at a point less than 18 inches across the wisdom of wearing leggings and clothes fitted tightly around the feet and legs when visiting infested areas. If children cannot be dressed so snugly, especially when on picnics, they must be protected by frequent examinations of their bodies and clothes.

And in all cases where symptoms in any illness resemble those of Rocky Mountain spotted fever, or where there is doubt about probable infection, the victim or likely victim should seek the immediate services of a reputable physician. Neglect and carelessness are twin evils where this danger prevails.

Emergency Pasture For Hogs

The most practical way to reduce pork production costs is to provide clean pasture for hogs. Experience proves that not only do hogs make their most economical gains when their chief feed is pasture, but they remain relatively free from roundworms and other international parasites commonly found under dry-lot feeding conditions. This principle of sound feeding and swine health applies as much to one or two animals kept for home meat as to a large number of hogs raised for market.

For decades American farmers have thought of hogs in terms of corn, and hog prices usually move along in harmony with corn prices. Thus corn remains a reliable measuring stick by which to judge feeding practices and feeds. It is interesting, therefore, to observe that experienced hog raisers consider an acre of good pasture equivalent in pork production to an acre of corn.

Alfalfa leads the list of pasture crops for hogs, followed in order by sweet clover, soybeans, red clover, lespedeza and the non-leguminous crops of rape, Sudan grass, rye, bluegrass, wheat, oats and minor grasses and grains. Of course, alfalfa and red clover are often too valuable as hay crops to be utilized for grazing, and too, some of the other named legumes may be more profitably used for hay.

Where permanent pastures are not sufficient for hogs, or where they are needed for other livestock, farmers should grow at least a few acres of rape, Sudan grass or other annual crop. If the field is divided into two or three equal plots to permit rotation grazing from one to another while the pastured plot is resuming growth, an acre of good pasture will support 10 to 15 hogs weighing up to 100 pounds each.

Of course, hogs on pasture require some supplementary feeds. If grazing on non-leguminous pasture they should have access to a protein ration. And on all kinds of pasture they should be fed minerals in self-feeders—ground phosphate, charcoal, finely ground limestone and salt. Many farmers add another bin containing bone meal or tankage. Others prefer a mixture of 70 pounds of bone meal, 25 pounds of ground limestone, and 5 pounds of salt. But tests have proved conclusively that hogs possess natural appetites which govern their supplemental feeds and mineral requirements better than man can determine in mixtures. Hence these materials may well be supplied separately in self-feeders, accessible all the time.

Hogs do not destroy pasture by rooting when their rations are properly balanced with minerals and proteins. In fact, rooting is usually the animal's natural search for missing nutrients, mainly proteins. Rape and Sudan grass perhaps lead among emergency pastures for hogs, either easily grown to grazing age within a few weeks. Too, both are exceptionally immune to droughts and make excellent pasturage for mid-summer and late summer grazing when most other pasture crops are decadent. Soybeans rate high in the hog pasture scale, particularly after other pastures begin to fail in late summer, furnishing valuable proteins in addition to a maximum of succulent leaves, pods and stalks.

When Chicks Turn Cannibals

Cannibalism—eating each other—is not confined to savage islanders, as cartoonists frequently depict with big iron kettles, ritual dancing and barbaric feasting. Brood sows occasionally eat their own young, while the practice is quite common and the problem acute among chicks. Methods of prevention are, of course, more important than remedies after the trouble starts. But most poultry owners must know how to check this gruesome and unprofitable evil as well as keep chicks from indulging in it.

Reasons for chicks practicing cannibalism are not clearly known. Many experienced poultrymen believe the birds are hungry for blood and other forms of animal matter and turn to their close relatives and associates to satisfy their unquenched appetites. Others claim that even when the ration contains bone meal, tankage, meat scrap and similar animal matter sufficient to meet nutritional needs for these elements that chicks still practice cannibalism. Others say idleness is the chief cause; still others aver too much light in the brooder house is the cause. It has even been advanced that the color of the walls influences chicks in their behavior along this line. Perhaps there is some truth in all these theories, at least enough to merit their consideration.

Often cannibalism begins by toe-picking. One chick sees its neighbor's toes resembling grains of wheat or other feed and takes a vigorous peck at the imaginary morsel. If blood is tasted, the appetite is stimulated and the attack intensified. Or the trouble may start when a chick pecks at the exposed rear parts of another chick's body. Usually when blood is drawn, other members of the flock join in the orgy and soon the victim may be painfully and seriously injured.

Prevention practices are wise. First among these is to feed chicks a well balanced ration, the mash kept before them all the time in sanitary hoppers and containing a balanced percentage of meat scrap, bone meal and other animal matter to satisfy the birds' normal appetites for this kind of nourishment.

Next, it is highly important for flock well being to keep the chicks busy. Green feed, such as clover clippings, grass, lettuce, kale and other greens, should be supplied daily in woven wire containers suspended to the wall to permit chicks to jump slightly to reach the relished feed. This will keep them employed at the same time it furnishes them an essential part of a well balanced ration.

Males should be removed to a separate room or range as soon as sex can be determined, as this practice tends to bring more peace to the flock. Too, males are usually placed on a special feed to rush them to an early broiler market.

When the first evidence of cannibalism is seen, chicks should be confined in a darkened room to frustrate the attacks, while all injured members—either victims of toe-picking or direct flesh injuries—should be removed to curtail the temptation and permit treatment of their wounds.

And poultrymen with experimental tendencies may try painting the lower part of the brooder house walls blue—the preferable preventive color. In the meantime it is advisable to place first emphasis on feeding and flock industry to reduce the possibilities of cannibalistic outbreaks.

"Fish" $3,200 From Woman's Bedroom

Pittsburgh, May 17 (AP)—A fishing pole was used, police believe to snare loot worth $3,200 from the bedroom of Mrs. R. D. Bates yesterday.

Mrs. Bates said she hung her purse, containing her jewelry, on the bedpost of her first floor room, and awoke to find the bag gone. Outside the open window, police found a 10-foot fishing pole with a nail on the end.

The tongue of the giraffe is about 18 inches long.

B. F. SHRIVER PLANS TO CAN 500,000 CASES OF FOOD IN '46

Farming and food processing, which helped win the war got for the B. F. Shriver company the coveted "A" award from the War Food Administration for its outstanding efforts, remains of paramount importance, and this month finds the Shriver company planning another "all out" year.

The company operates three processing plants, at Littlestown, Westminster and New Windsor, out of which will come, barring unforeseen eventualities, half a million cases of canned peas, sweet corn, green beans, tomatoes and pickles. The company farms 5,000 acres of land. It aims to fatten each year 500 head of beef cattle, in addition to keeping a herd of Angus beef cattle and a herd of Hereford beef cattle.

The Littlestown plant alone is set up to pack 200,000 cases of canned goods this season. It has 400 acres of peas to be processed at the Littlestown plant, and owns and operates three farms in connection with this one plant alone.

Dwight S. Ruggles is manager of the Littlestown plant and Fred H. Lindaman assistant manager. Both live in Littlestown.

The story of the B. F. Shriver company goes back to 1868, when the company was founded by B. F. Shriver. The original plant started operations in Westminster, but shortly thereafter moved to Union Mills, and at the close of the century, re-located in Westminster.

The Littlestown plant shared with Westminster and New Windsor "A" awards given the canners during the war. They were among the first in the county to receive the food administration's "A" and ceremonies were held in the Westminster high school auditorium February 26, 1944 when the green honor flag was presented to the company and pins were given each employee. This award was based on production of the preceding year. In 1945, the company received a star to add to its flag for its 1944 production efforts.

Production Manager

John W. Burgoon, now production manager of the three Shriver plants, was superintendent of the Littlestown plant at the time these awards were made.

James M. Shriver is president of the company, which celebrated its 75th anniversary in 1942. The founder, B. F. Shriver, who died in 1921, had he lived, would have celebrated his 100th birthday anniversary on that date. The present head of the firm is a son of the founder, C. Edward Cootes is vice president. Three of the Littlestown employees and Mr. Burgoon have been with the Shriver company for more than 15 years. They are William B. Fuss, F. Robert Long and Albert M. Moose.

The first pack at the Littlestown plant will begin with peas about June 1. Corn will follow about August 1 and tomatoes will start the middle of August and continue until killing frosts.

Shriver name brands are well-known in thousands of places where canned foods are sold. They included Shriver's A-1, Blue Ridge, World's Favorite, New Windsor and Lady Host.

Tomato Relish

The company also turns out a green tomato pickle relish which is made from an old recipe which originated with the Shriver family, and was first concocted over the family's kitchen stove before the founder of the firm went into the processing business.

The company employs at least 250 persons during the canning season, including fields and canneries. Up to two years ago it handpeeled all its tomatoes, but scarcity of women forced the plant to convert to juice.

"We hope, and are looking forward to being able to find, in our own community the help we will need in harvesting and processing our crops," Mr. Burgoon said today. "We must replace the 75 war prisoners we used last year, or crops will be lost in the fields."

TURKEY POULTS EASY TO RAISE WITH KNOW-HOW

"Turkey poulters are easy to raise if you are equipped and understand how," says Irvin L. Baughman, Littlestown R. 1, and Mr. Baughman ought to know, for he has been producing guaranteed poulters for the past 26 years. Mr. Baughman was in the hatchery business in Littlestown for 14 years, and has been at his present location a few miles outside the borough for the past 12 years. He purchased the farm now known as Baughman's Turkey Farm and Hatchery 16 years ago.

"We get most of our eggs from California," he said. "They are produced by a turkey growers association in that state." Those hatched by Mr. Baughman are the famous California broad-breasted bronze and the yellow-skinned broad-breasted White Hollands. The eggs are shipped from California to Philadelphia in refrigerator cars and by express from Philadelphia to the hatchery.

The season for poulters is from February 1 to August 1, but Mr. Baughman has no poulters on hand now. He has to have the eggs in January for delivery of poulters in February, the month of greatest demand, and California eggs are better because of the difference in climate. Nature brings the birds to the laying stage better where it doesn't get so cold.

Another reason for buying western eggs is, Mr. Baughman said, that most of the best strains have been bred in the west. In California, the eggs are not taken for hatching until the laying birds are 18 months old. Stronger poulters can be obtained than from eggs laid by younger birds.

Poulters do not stand being transported as well as chicks, and for that reason, Mr. Baughman does not make long shipments, but he does send poulters on order as far north as the New York State line, south to Maryland, east to the coast and west as far as Indiana. Most of the poulters are shipped by express, although some deliveries to nearer points are made by truck.

A good bred turkey, properly fed, is ready for the market in seven to nine months, according to Mr. Baughman. His hatchery fills orders for 50,000 poulters annually, between February 1 and August 1.

Mr. Baughman listed three main diseases among birds which are likely to cause mortality: coccidiosis, mycrosis and blackhead, but growers, he said, have learned how to combat them.

"The 1945 season was the largest turkey-growing year in the history of the United States," he declared. "There will be less turkeys raised in 1946. The feed situation will hold down production."

Points Of Leadership
Mr. Baughman lists five reasons why his bronze poulters and turkeys are leaders: proven livability of poulters; early maturity; excellent market type; more pounds of meat, less feed and standard breeding at no extra cost.

"Turkey buyers pay extra premiums for birds with a large, plump breast and compact body," he pointed out. "Our stock has been improved with stock purchased from one of the foremost turkey breeders in this country. This stock has been bred for years for short legs, short neck, broad breast and compact body."

"Our turkeys are hatched in special incubators in a building devoted exclusively to hatching turkey poulters. They grow big. For those who want a small turkey, we recommend the White Holland."

One hundred per cent live delivery is guaranteed by the Baughman hatchery. In addition to their regular business, the Baughman hatchery hatches many settings of eggs brought in by nearby farmers.

"I am so an American"

You bet you are, Sonny—just as American as any kid in town. So hold on there. Don't let those tears break through.

The first deep hurt...the dismay...the bewilderment...caused by childish taunts of years ago are still recalled by many an adult American made to suffer because his religion, race or color differed from that of others.

And, too, many grown men and women remember with a feeling of shame some childish cruelty...some foolish act of prejudice...in which they played a part.

How senseless it seems in the face of the fact, so forcefully demonstrated, that men of different color, different creed—Catholics, Protestants and Jews—can live and fight and die as one.

How well we've learned that there was no right or wrong side of the tracks among a bomber's crew—no family trees in those rubber rafts—that every wound bled red, none blue!

These are truths important for us all to remember now that Victory has come—now that America once more knows peace and tastes the happiness of families re-united.

These are truths to be remembered always because they are the truths Americans worked for... fought for... died for!

These are truths to be remembered because these are truths certain people among us would have us forget—people who would substitute hate for understanding, bigotry for tolerance, oppression for freedom.

Let us put an end to their plans to destroy the democracy we cherish.

Let us never forget, not only how well we fought, but why we fought.

The Story Of Andrew Schreiber (Shriver) Early Town Settler

Andrew and the Rev. Michael Schlatter rode silently through the softness of the early afternoon enroute to Peter Klein's home. They had talked, overmuch it seemed to Andrew, of the need of repairs to the schoolhouse-church and had decided to see Peter Klein who had told Andy of a friend who wished to help in the town. Now they were going to see Klein and locate the friend. There was work to be done and they hoped to get it done quickly, for soon the winter would come with its cold and its snow and then there would be no chance for repairs.

The trees presented their yellow and red and tan leaves to the brightness of the autumn air. The fields and bushes, even the weeds, were a riot of color. All nature had joined in the annual festival of beauty with which it heralds the coming of winter. The sky wore its bluest tint and the clouds were fleecy and white.

Need for Humility
Andrew and Reverend Schlatter rode with heads down, their horses plodding along the path through the woods. The Reverend Schlatter was spending the time in prayer and his voice was low pitched but strong. Andy, riding easily with the swing of the horse, let his mind open for the prayer and visualized the pictures that Schlatter painted, of the need for faith, the wickedness of the world, the evil of men and the temptations of the flesh.

Rabbits and squirrels raced from the path as the horses passed but the men did not see. Their thoughts were on the Lord and the need for humility.

They were hard working men who fought against the world for a bare living. They were descendants of those who taught the religion of the love with a sword and were not far removed from the law of Hammurabi and the code of honor of the middle ages. But as they saw it they lived it, and their love for religion, of the gloomiest variety, was profound.

There was a movement in the woods ahead of them, and the horses moved nervously to the side of the path.

The First Peddler
Trudging toward them was a strange figure. The man's homespun clothes were more tattered than was the custom even where clothing was worn for warmth and modesty and not vanity. His countenance had slipped around so that the tail was sliding over his left eye. His hair was a tangled unclean mass and his beard unkempt. On his back he bore a bag almost as large as himself and it was filled with pans and ribbons. He smiled slyly, and bowing, shuffled to one side of the path to allow the horses to pass. Andrew and the Reverend held their heads high passing him. Then Andrew spat.

"They shall ruin the world, coming with their worldly offerings," the Rev. Mr. Schlatter spoke. He took care that his penetrating voice reached as far as the peddler, who had continued his journey along the path. There was hatred for the peddlers among the men, for did not they bring trinkets and combs and other worldly things that would make a person forget his or her modesty? Here in the outposts of religion was an evil influence, one that for profit would sell a woman colored cloth to put in her hair to arouse evil in the hearts of men.

They passed a farmhouse and had nearly gone out of its sight when the Reverend Schlatter drew hard on the reins and put out his arm to stop Andrew. Schriver looked at the minister and wondered, for Schlatter's face had gone dead white. His cheekbones protruded tight against the flesh of his face. The force of his anger was tangible, could be felt as if something material were emanating from him.

"Daughter of Evil"
Schlatter whirled his horse and Andy was left behind, along with his question: "What is wrong?"

As Andy rode toward the house following the minister he saw Schlatter ride up to the girl.

"Abandoned wanton! O daughter, why do you flaunt yourself? Know you not that it is sinful to practice the sorcery of pride. Take that ribbon off, change thy dress. If God had wanted color in dresses he would have made the cloth with color. Shame on thee daughter, you have brought shame to your father and your mother and your family. Wanton daughter of evil, what notions has the devil put in thy head?"

The girl began to cry, sobbing that she wished to do no harm, but surely a little color would look so beautiful. "Beauty," the minister roared. "Beauty is the daughter of sin." The girl's mother came out from the house and slapped the girl across the face, ordering her to go to the house and get rid of the dress and the bright colored ribbon.

Then to the minister: "Reverend, I am sorry our daughter is such a disgrace. It is that peddler. We had forbidden her to see him but she must have, and bought that ribbon. The dress, she must have secured roots and made a dye. Her father will beat her you may be sure and never again will she make a display of herself."

The Reverend, mollified, nodded and turned to ride away. Speaking to Andrew, as they rode through the woods he spoke of his fears for the youth. "They are not like their parents, Andrew," Schlatter said: "Our generation knew the word of God and lived up to it. What will become of them I do not know."

They rode on awhile in silence then.

Finally the two arrived at the farm of Peter Klein.

Klein was enthusiastic. The 41 year old farmer was planning a village, on the site of his land.

Klein Plans Village
"Someday, Reverend," Klein said, his face smiling, "there will be many families here. I have laid out the land, look at the map here, for settlers when they come to form a village. One day it will be a prosperous place, with a store and perhaps a blacksmith shop. It will be a center for all of the people in the section. As you see I have laid out plans for 48 lots. Of course it will take time, perhaps years, for that many people to gather to form a town, but it is possible. And perhaps it will be called Kleina Stedle."

They expressed their hopes, politely, that Klein would be right and that a village would be formed there. Then they found the name of the neighbor who wished to help with the school repairs and rode on.

Andy looked at Schlatter, a half smile on his face. "Klein," Andy said, "is perhaps a little touched in his enthusiasm. Forty-eight houses and a store. Perhaps he is right, I wish it so for his sake, but it is doubtful if there will ever be enough people here to have the need for a town."

STRAUSE BAER COMPANY MAKES JACK TAR TOGS

The Strouse-Baer sewing factory at Littlestown has more than doubled the number of its employees and its production in the quarter of a century it has been there.

Strouse-Baer established the plant originally and then operated it for 15 years selling out eventually to Luke Jacobs, of Littlestown, who continued to make Jack Tar togs for Strouse-Baer until 1943 when the Baltimore company bought it back.

Mrs. Edna Sanders, manager of the Littlestown plant, has been an employee of the concern for more than 20 years and was floor lady under Jacobs.

Make Boys' Clothes
Most of the increase in the number of employees has come about since 1943 when there were about 30 women engaged in sewing children's wear that is produced by the concern. At one time the plant made both boys' and girls' clothes but the demand for the Jack Tar togs for boys outweighed the demand for girls' clothes and as a result only boys' clothing is made there at present, Mrs. Sanders said.

The building along the railroad tracks on South Queen street where the sewing factory is located has had an interesting history. Once a hotel, it now houses apartments on the second and third floor, the Baer plant on the first floor and a dry cleaning establishment in the basement.

Miss Myrtle Brumgard is dean of the employees who include quite a few who have been with the concern more than 20 years. Miss Brumgard has been with the establishment since it was founded.

Among those who have given two decades or more of service to the plant are, besides the manager and Miss Brumgard, Miss Esther BeMiller, Miss Amanda Staley, Mrs. Rose Quedilus, Mrs. Cora Boose, Mrs. Joseph Long and Mrs. Mary Smith.

One of the real "old timers" about the plant is Mrs. Lottie Zeigler, 76, who worked until she became ill about a week or so ago, but who plans to return as soon as she is able.

Rev. Berkheimer To Be Speaker May 29

Rev. George H. Berkheimer, pastor of the Arentsville Lutheran church, will be the speaker at the Memorial Day exercises to be held Wednesday evening, May 29, at the Littlestown cemetery; it was announced at the Legion meeting last evening.

Preceding the cemetery exercises, a parade will be held over the principal streets of the town. The drum and bugle corps of Harold H. Bair post of the American Legion, Hanover, will be in the line of march, as well as the Littlestown high school band. Local school children, Boy and Girl Scouts, and veterans will also march. The parade will move promptly from the playground at 7 p. m. (DST). The committee has urged that veterans of all wars turn out for this first peace-time observance in five years, with or without uniforms though it is preferred that they wear uniforms if available. Those unable to walk will be provided transportation in cars.

At the cemetery, where the parade will disband, in addition to Rev. Berkheimer's address, there will be several selections by the Littlestown high school band, and vocal numbers by a quartet composed of Robert Scholl, Clarence Schwartz, Jr., Albert Bair, and Robert DeGroot.

British Bride To Talk To Students

Mrs. William T. Timmins, Jr., Bedford avenue, Gettysburg, will be the speaker Tuesday evening at a dinner to be held by the Littlestown Rotary club for the senior boys and girls of Littlestown high school. The session is scheduled for 6:30 o'clock in Schottie's restaurant.

Mrs. Timmins, English bride of a Gettysburg resident, will speak on "Youth Activities in England." She was a member of the Navy, Army and Air Forces institute in England and of various young people's organizations there.

BOWLING HAS MANY FANS IN LITTLESTOWN

Although the regular league bowling season ended in Littlestown two weeks ago, interest in the sport still continues to such an extent that Sterling J. Wisotzky, proprietor of the Littlestown Bowling Center, plans to keep his alleys open all summer, closing only for a short time near the end of the summer for redecorating and refinishing.

Bowling, for many years an outstanding winter sport, is exceedingly popular in Littlestown, and Mr. Wisotzky's five alleys are busy every night. Two Littlestown leagues, the Men's and the Women's, used the alleys during the past season just closed, rolling their respective match games the first four nights of each week.

Eagles Cop Title
The Eagles won the championship in the men's division, and Weikert's team took first place in the women's league. The Keystone five finished second in the men's loop, with the Big Six third, Has-Beens fourth, Texas team fifth, Rotary sixth, Bowling Centre seventh and Foundry eighth.

In the women's league, Bankert's was second, Windsor Stitching third, Jones fourth, Windsor Packing fifth, Windsor Office sixth, Schotties seventh and Blue Ridge eighth. The Littlestown Bowling Centre is located on East King street, at the rear of the Methodist church, in a building which has served the borough as town hall, school recreation center and sewing factory. Littlestown high school at one time, before the present high school was built, used the building for its basketball games, school plays and other entertainments. It is owned by the church.

In War Plant
Mr. Wisotzky has been the proprietor of the alleys since September 5, 1945. For three and a half years prior to taking over, Mr. Wisotzky was employed at the Glen L. Martin plant in Baltimore. He is a native of Littlestown.

In connection with Littlestown bowling activities, Mr. Wisotzky said the annual banquet of the Men's bowling league will be held May 8. No date has been set yet for the Women's banquet, he said.

The bowling alleys conform to American Bowling Congress regulations and are recognized as official by the ABC. Mr. Wisotzky said. The Southern Pennsylvania League bowled on the alleys Saturday nights during the past winter season. Waynesboro finished first in this loop and Littlestown second.

Work on St. Paul's Lutheran church has been completed, and the new front on the building presents an attractive appearance.

FATHER AND 3 SONS OPERATE OLD BUSINESS

The Littlestown Machine company at 246 M street, Littlestown, is a family affair. Founded 23 years ago by John Bucher, in a building at the rear of his home, it is still headed by Mr. Bucher. Three of his sons, Mahlin, Clark and Robert, are now associated with him in the business.

Mr. Bucher is a native of Littlestown and an expert machinist. He learned his trade and was employed in Hanover and York and in Peru, Ind., before he opened his own shop. Originally much smaller than the present building, the plant has been expanded and added to as the business increased.

General Repair Work
From M street there is little evidence of the busy activity which goes on day after day in Mr. Bucher's back yard. The Bucher residence, a nicely painted and well maintained home of the better type in Littlestown has a wide and attractive lawn and garden at the side, with shrubbery, flowers and garden ornaments.

A walk leads from M street to the machine shop in the rear, which is a one-story frame building, also painted white, with a rear entrance on an alley. The shop itself is the equal, in equipment and tools, to the best in any city, and better than many similar shops. There are numerous lathes, drill presses, milling machines and other precision tools to turn out the finest kind of a job.

"We are in the general repair work business," Mr. Bucher said, in describing his shop, "and we also build light machines, such as wood-working machinery," he added. The Littlestown Machine company does work for factories in Littlestown and in other communities, and also does a large number of farm equipment repair jobs.

TO MEET MERCHANTS

Representatives of the Littlestown Legion post will meet Tuesday evening at the post home at 510 East King street with the businessmen of the town, for the purpose of making plans for the Homecoming celebration for veterans of Littlestown and vicinity, Commander Clarence J. Krichen has asked that all merchants of the town and other interested parties be present at the meeting.
